Section A: Language change

Question 1

Read Texts A, B and C.

Analyse how Text A exemplifies the various ways in which the English language has changed over time. In your answer, you should refer to specific details from Texts A, B and C, as well as to ideas and examples from your wider study of language change. [25]

Text A

Extracts from *The History of Mansfield*¹, written by a journalist and historian called William Harrod, and published in 1801

PUBLIC BUILDING.

*The Moot-Hall.*²

In the market-place, was built in the year 1752, by Lady Oxford, for the purpose of accomodating the market people with shelter, and furnishing the town with room for discussing public business, and the gentry with an elegant assembly room. When it was finished her ladyship came in her carriage to take a view of it, and finding that her directions had not been followed she ordered her carriage to be driven homewards, and went away not very well pleased. It answers, however, every purpose, excepting the principal object, namely that of sheltering the market people. The great room measures 48 feet by 17, too low, and altogether badly proportioned. 5 10

In this hall the county meetings are held.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Theatre, tho' small, is very well contrived, having side and front boxes, from whence may be seen the buskin'd³ heroes fretting⁴ their hour upon the stage. The Managers introduce their company in the summer, and make their exit after a stay of nearly two months. The present managers are Messrs. Huggins and Collier. 15

The Bowling Green is situate in Leeming-lane, and measures 52 yds. by 33, and is supported by subscription. At this house is a public Billiard room in which is a table measuring 12 feet by 6, over which is an assembly and card-room, from whence you command a view of the green. 20

At this house (known by the name of the Bowling green,) the Justices meet once a fortnight on a market day to transact business.

COLD BATH.

Far below the level on which you stand are mills and houses by which is a road leading to the town. Having deservedly admired this you proceed to the Bath. Near the Bath is a huge rock, from which issues a constant stream of water much coveted by the amateurs of the limpid⁵ element. Altho I am not of the tribe of water-drinkers, I had the curiosity to taste thereof and pronounce it to be neither saline nor tepid. 25

² Moot-Hall: a building for meetings or assemblies, where local issues are discussed

³ buskin: a calf-high or knee-high boot

⁴ fretting: to be eroding or wearing away at something

⁵ limpid: clear and transparent (of a liquid)
